What will happen if you decide to be in this study?

After the interview has finished, if you require counseling, I will provide a trained counselor in a private and comfortable room for you. We will ask for a telephone number where we can contact you if necessary. If you agree to provide your contact information, it will be used only by people working for this study and will never be shared with others. The reasons why we may need to contact you include clarifying some of the information you will have given and not clear to me.

Are there any risks, harms, or discomforts associated with this study?

Medical research has the potential to introduce psychological, social, emotional, and physical risks. Efforts will always be put in place to minimize the risks. One potential risk of being in the study is loss of privacy. We will keep everything you tell us as confidential as possible. However, no system of protecting your confidentiality can be fully secure, so it is still possible that someone could find out you were in this study and could find out information about you. Also, answering questions in the interview may be uncomfortable for you. If there are any questions you do not want to answer, you can skip them. You have the right to refuse to participate in the interview or any questions asked during the interview. It may be embarrassing for you to ask some questions; however, we will do everything we can to ensure that this is done in private. Furthermore, all study staff and interviewers are professionals with special training in these examinations/interviews. Also, some information about the child may be stressful and not easy to recall, however, I request you provide the most correct responses to the best of your ability.

Are there any benefits to being in this study?

You may benefit by receiving free counseling when needed and health information, as necessary. We will refer you to a hospital for care and support where necessary.
